DECLINES TO PAINT CORONATION SCENE

London, Eng., Nov. 16 .- Edwin A. Abbey, the American R. A., has declined the honor of painting the gorgeous scene, in Westminster Abbey when king George is crowned. He was selected to, do the coronation picture for the late aing Edward, which now hangs in Buckingham Paiace but, says Mr. Abbey, "Never again." For its accomplishment it was necessary to obtain private unpunctualitya nd petulance and vanity when at length the engagement was kept. During the lying in state of king Edward at Westminster Hall, he was approached from a nigh quarter with the suggestion that he should paint an-

"Mostly lamb chops, my boy." MATCH THE OCCASION. "Why did you smile when I told you Gussie was going to celebrate her wooden wedding?"
"I couldn't help thinking how well Gussie's husband would match the ce-

"Answer him, Clara!" echoed the old men in the hall, thinking of the coal and gas bills. "I can't bear this expense much longer!"

"What comes after a million, pa?" asked the boy who was just learning to count!
"Generally some bogus nobleman," answered his millionaire father. "I wouldn't spend my last day at the seashore writing letters." "I must finish this letter. It's the one I started to my flance when I first came down." The Man in the Chair-I enjoy a quiet smoke.

The Other-Well, you'll never be troubled with crowds while you smoke cigars of that brand! "I wish we could ascertain the last words of that famous man."

"They are lost to history. But we might print his first words," "Do you know what they were?" "No; but the chances are that they were 'Ah, goo.'" "What are the wild waves saying?" demanded the girl playfully,

"I don't know," said the man who had wandered away from the hotel, "but I don't believe it is scandal of any sort."

"Honesty is the best policy," remarked the optimist. "So it was in the days of the proverb-maker," rejoined the contrary person, "but I guess the policy must have expired."

"He's as regular as a six-day clock."
"I noticed that he always looks run-down on Sundays."
